The contemporary Volkswagen, New Beetle, was revealed at the 1998 Detroit Auto Show. The New Beetle was different from its predecessor, but the design was based on the original Volkswagen Beetle. The original Beetle was a revolutionary automobile. The Beetle was a simple and economical automobile, which was produced in Germany, and was exported to the United States and other countries. It became a phenomenon, the Beetle epitomized an entire state from driving to lifestyle. The Beetle appealed to various people from young to old, from the rich to the poor, from the conservative to the liberal. The Beetle was a symbol of the 1960's counterculture movement. The Beetle was also a symbol of the 1960's counterculture movement. Eastern Bloc countries made the new Beetle, Porsche, and Volkswagen.

Volkswagen's new generation car, New Beetle, was produced in Puebla, Mexico, and was exported to the United States and other countries. Like the Volkswagen Beetle, Porsche, and Volkswagen, the Volkswagen Beetle, Porsche, and Volkswagen, the Volkswagen Beetle, Porsche, and Volkswagen,
